Yearbook in the Marsh Collection, Amherstburg, ON

Principal's Message

To offer sincere words of praise, commendation and encouragement is a real pleasure for one whose duties do not always lend themselves to such procedure. However, the staff of the "Amherst Annual" deserves real credit for making an enthusiastic start and for maintaining a sustained effort to make this issue of the Annual "the best to date". Under a dynamic editor, the sizeable group of pupils who have produced our yearbook have worked well and long. I trust you will appreciate their efforts and that they will feel their hard work has been worthwhile.

It is difficult to say whether the yearbook staff set the 65-66 pace or whether they were so inspired by other groups. It really does not matter. However, I must go on record as noting General Amherst school spirit to be very high during the present school year. Many worthwhile activites have been attempted and carried through in a manner of which we may all be proud. Elsewhere in this volume you will find the details recorded, details that will recall an active and efficient Student Council led by a top-notch executive, a most satisfying record in inter-school athletic competition, a treasured report of our visit to the Shakespearean Festival in Stratford, a U.N.I. C.E.F. appeal that exceeded all expectations, a full quota magazine drive, several worthwhile assemblies and other functions, an all-time-high number of participants in our public speaking contest, most satisfactory continuation and expansion of our choir and library club, a live and active newspaper group with innovations galore for the "Express", and a service minded Key Club. Only the fact that these lines are penned in early January prevents the list from being longer and including events that are yet to come in the programmes of history, mathematics and French clubs, the cheerleaders, cadet corps and others.

While efficient leadership given by many of our teachers must be recognized as an important factor, yet the main credit for such an outstanding programme must go to that great majority of our students who find satisfaction in being good citizens and in supporting, with their time and talent, the many worthwhile school activities.

Is it possible that we improve our preformance when we must work under difficulties? No one can deny that our over-crowding, which was necessitated classes as early as 8:15 and as late as 4:15, three lunch periods and too many cafeteria study periods because of lack of classroom space, could well have dampened enthusiasm for extra-curricular activities. However, the pupils of General Amherst have taken these inconveniences in their stride and without complaint. 65-66 promises to have been a banner year-congratulations to all of you.

There is no reason to suppose that our pupils are any less eager to do well in the classroom than on the playing field, the stage or in the editorial room of our yearbook. Schools do exist, and you do attend, primarily to provide you with "an education". Your classroom instruction is most important, but not all important. One who does not participate in some extra curricular activities cheats himself of a valuable part of his education. It is well for any of us to learn to "work when we work" and "play when we play". Whether at work or at play, only OUR BEST is acceptable.

Crowded as we are and shall be for at least another year, keep these simple rules in mind and your years at General Amherst will be pleasant and profitable. You will pass this way only once. Continue to give your best and you will not be disappointed.

Good luck, may God bless you.

Reg. A. Cozens

Vice-Principal

Punctuality and regularity of attendance are two essentials, almost akin to virtues, which too often are overlooked by students in their pursuit of knowledge. The former is defined as the habit of coming or being ready at the right time. It also implies that one can and does meet deadlines by completing assignments as given, promptly and without continual reminders. As pointed out above, punctuality is a habit, and habits are only acquired or formed by practice. Because of the many anecodotes concerning the fallacy that a girl enhances her charms and popularity by keeping the young man waiting, young people fail to realize the importance of being on time. Few are aware that one of the first enquiries made by prospective employers, after ability, concerns the applicant's record of punctuality and attendance.

Much of what has been said also applies to regularity of attendance. This is especially true for weak or mediocre students. Essential points that have been missed as a result of inattendance, interfere with the continuity of the learning process. These points are seldom if ever, thoroguhly understood by the boy or girl who has to resort to second hand explanations from classmates who may be having difficulties themselves. Further, "catching up" presents a serious problem for those students who are finding it a difficult enough task to "keep up". Employers are not interested in hiring those who are "chronically" ill. Absenteeism is a very costly luxury which most businesses and Firms can ill afford.

In view of the fore-going, it is hoped that every student of General Amherst will strive for a complete education, that all students will ever strive for these additional assets to learning, which will contribute much to their chances of success in whatever occupation they may choose to pursue beyond high school.

The Student Council has been especially prosperous and responsible this year. The Council consists of Clem Foreman as President, Flossie Renaud as Vice-President, Joy Bailey as Secretary and David Deslippe as Treasurer. Mr. Johnson and Miss Mills were Staff Advisors. These people are all very concerned, honest members.

Clem and Flossie have had excellent ideas concerning the Student Council's welfare. Joy has kept excellent notes about the meetings and David has kept clear records for the treasury.

I am sure all of the students of General Amherst appreciate their Student Council.

This year our cheerleaders proved to be very successful. They have two competent captains, Linda Bertrand and Lois Czikasz and also a very good coach, Miss Hamilton. All of the cheerleaders seem to be very enthusiastic.

As an added attraction, three boy cheerleaders have joined the squad. They are very dependable and attend all of the practices. It might be noted, if you'll excuse the pun, that they carry the weight of the squad on their shoulders.

Key Club meetings this year were held on Mondays at 11:56. Our staff advisor, Mr. Ellenburger gave a great deal of his time to the club and aided in our drive for a successful year.

Money for the club was raised by checking coats at dances, for which we received ten dollars a night from the Students Council. Refreshments were also sold. A car wash was also held in the autumn.

We attended meetings of both the Rotary Club and the Kiwanis. Eight of the members attended the second annual inter-divisional rally London.

The club hopes to be able to take in new members next year and we will be looking forward to seeing some of you there.

This year the newspaper became more of a periodical magazine published three times during the year - one issue per term.

The Club was organized initially by Miss Dey, who helped publish the Christmas edition. Mr. Johnson supervised the Easter edition and the English Department as a whole co-operated on the June publication.

Flossie Renaud took over as Editor once again this year and did a fine job, with help from her experienced staff.

Judy and her staff of typists managed to get the copy whipped into shape in time for the deadlines; Clida scouted around for news of Girl's Athletic events; Keith kept us posted on the affairs in the Library; Kathy and Howard worked into the 'wee small hours of the morning on the Boys' Sports; Bill helped out in the Literary section; and Doris was the artist who drew those beautiful covers.

Peggy, Jennifer and Mary looked after all affairs which would be of interest to the girls and Peter assisted all Department heads as well as doubling in the Literary column.

"The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man." So Clarence Dey says in one of his works. Many students have found this statement very true after taking up membership in the Library Club. To them, a new world opened, one of self learning and service to others.

The Library accomplished many things in 1965-66 which will aid students for many years to come. Under the dynamic leadership of Keith Kelly, (President), and with the assistance of a capable executive and devoted members, the Library Club has stood out as one of the most mutually beneficial organizations in General Amherst this year.

For the first time in the " Amherst Annuals " history, it is being published in hard-cover form. It is hoped that this will help preserve the book for future generation.

Miss Dey supervised organizationally while Mr. Tighe took care of financial aspects.

Our very fine Editor this year was the industrious David Deslippe ably assisted by Associate Editor, Peter Kasurak, "and a cast of thousands" on the working staff.

We were able, once again, to publish a fine yearbook, and still maintain our ideal of "no advertising".

Drama

This year the Drama Club was rather a "Mixed-Up" affair. The productions were put on by various classes and sponsored by a variety of teachers.

Miss Dey supervised the Shakespearian Actors who fractured Romeo and Juliet and later helped the 11A-1 class to present a one act skit at the Christmas assembly. The Crest Theatre Players inspired this same class to later put on selections from the 9, 10, and 11 English program.

Mr. McCallum worked diligently with the 12's to stage the highly successful production of the play "Labours of Love".

Mr. Stickings and Miss Decarie joined forces to present the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta of "Trial by Jury".

SR. GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

Undefeated champions arise again! During the 1966 basketball season, the Juniors were given good competition from the Leamington and Essex teams. The result of all these hard-fought games was the Essex County Championship. The next giant step was against the Kent County Champions for the SWOSSA title. They were conquerors again by winning a two game total point series against Wallaceburg. They would like to thank the students for the support shown them at the games and especially thank Mrs. Telegadas, their coach, for the individual attention in coaching.

Although our Seniors were not successful in capturing any championship this year, they must be commended for their determination and high spirits throughout the entire season. They finished in third place, with Essex first and Leamington close behind in second. The girls of the team would like to hand Mrs. Fee for her hard work and faith that she gave the team.

INTRAMURAL VOLLEYBALL

PEE WEE LEAGUE BASKETBALL

The annual Hallowe'en campaign for U.N.I.C.E.F., was a big success this year at General Amherst High, thanks to the work and contributions of all the staff and students. Our school sent $800.71 to help feed and protect the underprivileged children in all parts of the world. The executive, Sheila McGill, Yvette Laframboise and John Squire, the advisor, Miss SiBue, the canvassers and 12T-1, the class with the highest contributions, deserve a lot of credit for their hard work. I hope that next year our school has another successful campaign and another generous contribution to U.N.I.C.E.F.

The 12B's organized a campaign in the Spring to raise money for the local Rotary Campaign for Crippled Children, in conjunction with the Easter Seal Campaign. They thought up many stunts such as Slave Day and a Fashion Show. Their efforts were very well rewarded.

IF ANY QUESTION WHY WE DIED, TELL THEM, BECAUSE OUR FATHERS LIED

Why do you cry my child? The Blood? Oh this is but the blood of mortals who knew not how to save their souls. They must quarrel over petty things and search for dreams in which to hide their guilt. Don't weep for them, for they can give you nothing but empty reasons and are scarcely worth the bitter tears you shed.

Why do you cry my child? The Pain? Oh this is but the pain of broken hearts. What good are broken hearts to you? The hearts of millions could never buy a pound of the most inexpensive wares. Forget the hearts of those, for they scarce remember you. Besides the hearts could never serve you as well they should. You see, the heart is useless but to bring breath to the lips of the mortals below so they can kill some more. You need hardly weep for this.

Why do you cry my child? The Hate? Oh this is but the hate of nations, one for another. They hate because they are afraid yet fear is but a useless ghost that visits the child in the night. You cry because there is no love but even man has long ago seen that love can never buy him food and fancy clothes. It is foolish indeed to cry; for those who hate must be your ememies and you must never weep for them. Do you think for one second, they would weep for you?

Why do you cry my child? The Tears? Oh these are but the tears of the oppressed. They have been killed by invaders and were too weak to save themselves. Why weep for them? Theirs are selfish tears and lament not for you. The crystal drops on your cheek show you pity them but to what end? Man has long ago charted his course and realized that he must do unto others before they do unto him.

Why do you cry my child? The Dead? Oh these are the silent children of a slaughtered people. They are dead and serve no purpose but to clutter up the earth. What could you feel for them ? They were our enemies once for they refused to fight or knew not the meaning of war. Of what use were they but to line the trenches or sweat in the factories. No tears for them my little one.

You weep for all these useless, senseless things my child! You waste your precious tear-drops on those which can give you nothing in return. You are a fool to spill out your feelings on all these worthless things. You might better spend your idle hours in trying to find a way of getting more money from the things put at your use. Yet if you must weep, you could better weep for the living, the Painless, the Bloodless and the Tearless for it is these who must pay the price to live with themselves on the terms which they have willed.

DEATH: THE PRICE OF IMMORTALITY

All my useless life I have lived in dreams, not years, in thoughts, not breaths, in feelings, not figures on a dial. For a lifetime is but; one day of an eternity and one day is but a heart beat or the falling of a tear. Besides, they say the Dead don't die but remain near to the rich heirs of their grief and mirth. My life is but an empty prayer, tinted the colour of my imagination and lined with broken promises. I should not be sad to see it pass away at the end of the next three days.

It would be pointless, I suppose, to even attempt to cram a lifetime of physical action into a breath. And then too, all the places there are to see, I can visit in another world. I should be content I think to spend those last few hours in the company of my thoughts and memories. Here, all day through, Great Hopes, Jester Fanticies, Pilgrim Dreams and little Beggar Sighs would bow to my Benediction. Here, in the chambers of my mind, I could be king of all mankind, ruler of life and death, lord of all I survey. I should recall; lose; grasp; and forget again, a tale I've heard or known. An empty tale of pain and idleness. Yet here, less than echoes of remembered tears hush all the loud confusion of my heart.

In these last days, I'd watch the sorrow of an evening sky, and smell the sea and earth and the sweet warm clover. I'd hear the smashing of an angry sea upon the blood red rocks and do a million things that human form could never do. My tired eyes would be dazzled and drunk with the misty gold of a sunrise as it eddies and dances about my room. I could touch the soft cold snow and feel it melt away into a field of scarlet roses. My ears could hear the mocking cry of a soaring sea gull and the quiet patter of a crystal raindrop on my window glass.

Perhaps my thoughts would let me see an automn maple with its branches all aflame or let me taste the honey of a lover's kiss, or let me plunge into the silent realm of the Dead. I would see in my mind's eye the august world when it puts on the witchery of a dream. I might even see the obscure speck they call 'humanity'..... then put out my hand to touch the face of God.

MAN: The trouble with you kids is that you don't want to grow up.

YOUTH: Once I wanted to grow up but then I saw -
- men complaining about their jobs and then dieing from boredom after they retired
- doctors who tell you not to smoke and ask for a light in the same breath
- old ladies who want books censored, but never miss Peyton Place
- men who marry wives they think are bores and chase after girls they think are tramps
-Man, to my generation NOT WANTING TO GROW UP is a sign of maturity.

A STORY TOLD BY JACK PARR AND REWRITTEN BY SUSAN JONES OF 11A-2

An English lady, while visiting Switzerland, was looking for a room and she asked the schoolmaster of the town if he could find one for her. He took her to see several which he recommended and when everything was settled, the lady returned to her home to make preparations to move.

When she arrived home, the thought occurred to her that she had not seen a W. C. (water closet or washroom) around the place. Therefore she wrote a note to the schoolmaster asking if there was a W. C. around. The schoolmaster was a very poor student of colloquial English, and therefore he asked the parish priest if he could help. Together they tried to discover the meaning of the letters W. C. and the only solution they could find for them was a "Wayside Chapel".

The schoolmaster then sent the following letter to the English lady.

Dear Madam,

I take great pleasure in informing you that the "W. C." is situated nine miles from the house you occupy, in the centre of a beautiful grove of pine trees surrounded by lovely grounds.

It is capable of holding 229 people and it is open on Sunday and Thursday only. As there are a great number of people and they are expected during the summer months, I would suggest that you come early; although there is plenty of standing room as a rule.

You will no doubt be glad to hear that a good number of people bring their lunch and make a day of it. While others who can afford to go by car arrive just in time, I would suggest that your Ladyship go early and on Thursday when there is a musical accompaniment.

It may interest you to know that my daughter was married in the "W.C." and it was there that she met her husband. I can remember the rush for seats! There were ten people to a seat usually occupied by one. It was wonderful to see the expressions on their faces!

A bazaar is to be held to provide plush seats for all the people, since it is a long-felt need. My wife is rather delicate so she can't attend regularly.

I shall be delighted to reserve a seat for you if you wish, where you will be seen by all. For the children there is a special time and place so that they will not disturb the elders.

Hoping to have been of service to you, I remain,

Sincerely,
THE SCHOOLMASTER.
